TABERNACLE FEAST OPENS WEDNESDAY

Culminating Festival of Series of Feasts Will Last Over Period of Eight Days.

The Sukkoth Festival, or the Feasi of Tabernaeles, which comprises eight days, beginning on the evening of September 22 and ending October 1 as observed by Hebrews throughout the world, is the culminating lesson of the series of holidays of the month. Or.ce a year Israel revives its love of the soil, and makes public avowal of the fact that even an industrial civilization depends primarily upon the elements of nature. This restatement of love for and confidence in Mother Earth is, indeed, a fact of Hebrew religiousness. Judaism is a religion in the very midst of the passions, aspirations, and complications of life. Nowhere are these more insistent than in the economic interests of men. Here religion has a duty as well as an opportunity. Judaism en-deavors not merely to fortify men in their difficulties as to the daily bread, deavors not merely to fortify men in their difficulties as to the daily bread, but also to keep them moral, larger hearted, and just.

The Sukkoth Festival is meant not as a season of self-congratulation upon having garnered in the product of the farm or the gains of business, but as a time efor thought on the larger-scoped social interests of men in the national and international life. The Jews are the first to have recognized political economy as the field where religion and morality must operate for the good of men.

In its modern form the suggestive ness of this truth of the Sukkoth Festival is made more effective by the fact that it occurs at the beginning of the autumn, coincident with the increased activities of the economic agencies. It is, as it were, a timely lesson for each one to interpret his life as of larger scope, related to the national life and made possible in fullness only within it.

The "dwelling in the booths" as characteristic of the Hiblical phase of the festival and observed as as archaic symbolism nowadays, is a suggestive domestic ritual which reaffirms the lessons of "the simple life," and the democracy of the Hebrew household. The five symbolic plants, bundled together, hint that, as the gifts of God in nature vary and in their totality make human life sweet and satisfactory, so the difference among men, as to service and character, may serve to make "society" an organisation in which each one has a place and can make a healthful contribution.
